Chris Trakel Announces Run for State Senate, District 11

Caldwell, Idaho – Chris Trakel has announced that he has entered the race for State Senate, District 11.

“These past few years we have had people arrested for going to church, going to public parks, attending government meetings, going to work, just to name a few. This all happened while my opponent stood idly by, and in some instances participated, while Idahoans were stripped of their liberties. It is time to eliminate the government’s ability to make this happen again. “

“As a member of the Idaho State Senate, I will fight for our state sovereignty and our ability as Idahoans to make our own decisions without state and federal government overreach. I will fight for our 2nd Amendment rights, our choice in education as parents, and for the rights of the unborn. In these times of inflation, higher gas prices, the rise in housing costs, we need to focus on lowering our tax burden by fighting to repeal grocery taxes and reform our property tax laws. While many Idahoans are hurting, lobbyists and special interests are benefitting.”

“Since I retired from the Marines and returned home to Idaho I have talked with others as our frustrations grew over the lack of our officials to deal with many issues. I will be a true representative of Idahoans at the State Capital.”
